University of Minnesota
Bioinformatics and Computational Biology

Open House

for current undergraduate students from any college/university

Friday, October 25th

noon-5pm

Cancer and Cardiovascular Research Building (CCRB) Lobby

snacks provided

- Learn more about bioinformatics and computational biology research at the University of Minnesota.
- Network with Bioinformatics and Computational Biology (BICB) program graduate students and faculty.
- Tour faculty labs and core facilities.

- Examples of research initiatives:

  human health, public health, microbiome, agriculture, machine learning, genomics, data mining, neural networks, bacterial and viral infections, epigenetics, personalized medicine, metabolomics, veterinary health, mathematical models, quantum mechanics, medical device, drug design, information science, image recognition, and more

- BICB graduate program partnering institutions:

University of Minnesota · Rochester · Mayo Clinic · IBM · National Marrow Donor Program · Be the Match · Cray The Supercomputer Company · The Hormel Institute University of Minnesota Mayo Clinic

Please click here to register (or register at the event).

https://forms.gle/zN4WG6o5oeEzX3Um6

BICB Student Ambassador contacts:

nguy1892@umn.edu, rodri754@umn.edu, mbridges@umn.edu